

From: Bobby Hill
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/10/02 4:30pm
Subject: Fair Justice for Microsoft

Nothing in the agreement with the justice department and microsoft terminate the illegal monopoly and denies microsoft the fruits of its statutory violation as is required under the Tunney Act. Microsoft has done more damage to the computer industry more over the last 20 years than any company has hurt any market in the history of the world. They're greed knows know bounds and they will do anything to maintain the monopoly they got by illegal means. They lied to the Justice department before which was the reason for the antitrust case in the first place. Microsoft doesn't have enough billions of illegal gotten profits, they intend to convert all they're customers whether the customer likes it or not to a rental model of software which will only work if microsoft has an illegal monopoly. This will allow profits skyrocket and allow a reduction in research and improvement of their software. Microsoft idea of security is for their customers is to stop information about security holes in its software to be shared. I'm surprise that they haven't claim a copyright violation whenever someone finds a security problem, but given time I think they will claim this. Microsoft has never been about the customer. They have been about milking the consumer for all the money from they're now adjudged illegal monopoly for all they can and maintaining they're monopoly at all costs.

Bobby E Hill Jr.